

Raleigh: City of Oaks

Did you know: Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina, is often called the city of oaks. This is because early city planners in the late 1700s kept many of the native oak trees in the city, planning around them instead of clearing the land.

Directions: Complete the maze to help the North Carolina native eastern gray squirrel find the acorn to eat!

